DIRECTORS OF THE DOD FIELD ACTIVITIES

SUBJECT: Antideficiency Act (ADA) Investigator Training Frequency

Beginning October 1, 2012, the frequency requirement for ADA investigator training will change from five-year to three-year intervals. It is the responsibility of each Department of Defense Component to ensure that its ADA investigators are properly trained.

The type of required training remains as specified in the Department of Defense Financial Management Regulation (DoDFMR), Volume 14, Chapter 8, "Investigator Training." Only the frequency requirement of the ADA investigator training will change. Existing ADA investigators must renew their certification three years from their last certification date in order to remain eligible to conduct investigations.

This policy change will be included in the next update of the DoDFMR, Volume 14, Chapter 8. Questions regarding Volume 14 may be directed to Ms. Charlotte Beacham. She can be reached at (703) 602-0371 or charlotte.beacham@osd.mil.
